must go so far south.

People may think they get Abolitionism of the purest kind in the New York Tribune; but the very Simon-Purest is to be found in Harper's Weekly. Compared with that of Harper's Weekly, the Abolitionism of the Tribune is adulterated with common sense, decency, patriotism and what not-particularly with what five per cent. not. The Abolitionism of the Weekly is got up regardless of expense. Harper's Weekly is the Beau Brummell of Abolitionism. It is brave and noble deeds of daring in the recent the ne plus ultra, the ultima thule, the pillars of Hercules, the Landsend and the Watersend of Abolitionism. While the Tribune is at the Oreades, the Weekly is at "Greenland, Zembla mention. Through the flery ordeal it passed, or the Lord knows where." Nay, it is the very with such losses as are detailed in the report

The last number of the Weekly contains an engraving which will force the most reluctant Abolitionists to support the President's proclamation. In that engraving the benefits of emancipation are presented in such a way as to be visible to the naked eye. The picture covers two pages, and is announced with two flourishes of trumpets. "The picture shows what bravest of the brave: was in America and what shall be," says the Lounger. "In the center of the picture," says the editor, "is a negro's free and happy home. Here domestic peace and comfort reign supreme, the reward of faithful labor, undertaken with the blissful knowledge that at last its benefit belongs to the laborer only, and that all his honest earnings are to be appropriated, as he may see fit, to the object he has most at heart-his children's advancement and education. On the wall hangs a portrait of President Lincoln, whom the family cannot sufficiently admire and revere. They regard him with feelings skin to veneration, and in each heart there is honest leve and gratitude for him. Near this is a barjo, their favorite musical instrument, a source of never-ending enjoyment and recreation," &c . &c.

that every free white man, with or without intelligence and industry, has a free and happy home, where domestic peace and comfor reign supreme, and where pictures delight the eye and banjos charm the ear, and cookingstoves regale the nose; and whence flocks of children are continually rushing out to school, with pockets full of marbles, and stomache and hands full of bread and meat, it is to be expected, as a matter of course, that every negro shall become possessed of all these things by the mere proclamation of freedom.

It is also well known that every slaveholder is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is as well furnished as the man in gray who is a furnished as th expected, as a matter of course, that every ley's civision, near which point I remained bought Peter Schlemill's shadow, and that when they eater the after him; that when they catch the nigger he pulls a red-hot iron out of his pocket and brands him. Every man of intelligence knows this to be the normal condition of things in every slave State, and we expected to see it changed by the proclamation. We are not surprised to see bloodhounds and red-hot irons metamorphosed into banks and is as well furnished as the man in grav who three bloodhounds out of his pocket and sets them after him; that when they catch the nigger he pulls a red-hot iron out of his pocket and brauds him. Every man of intelligence knows this to be the normal condition of things in every slave State, and we expected to see it changed by the proclamation. We transformed into a decent individual making a bow to the niggers—a thing which no white may ever does to a nigger in a slave State, and which every rich employer in the free States does to white laborers every time he meets them. But what does surprise us is the change that is to take place in the physical appearance of the negro. We have read Ovid's Metamorphoses, and the work contains some rather tough stories; indeed, Ovid himself acknowl. tough stories; indeed, Ovid himself acknowledges that some of them would be hard to believe if antiquity itself were not a witness to their truth. But Ovid would not have been so skeptical if he had ever seen the effects of a President's proclamation. The physcial features of the negro are familiar to the publisher; for they have been often seen in the pictures in Harper's Weekly, when the thick lips, the flat note, the woully head, the retreating forchead and the black skin have been presented with and the black skin have been presented with all the accuracy for which that paper is so justly celebrated. But now, at Mr. Lincoln's command, the thick lips shrink into beauty; the flat nose arises into Grecian symmetry the retreating forehead advances and fills it self with brains; the wool arranges itself in becoming curls, like those ambrosial curls which Jupiter shook when he gave the nod; the skin remains a little black, but no blacker equal to this in Ovid?

To keep our readers posted on the subject, we have published the decisions of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and shall continue to do so as fast as they are sent out. With regard to the revenue stamps, the original law required that stamps should be made for every particular thing required to be stamped, and stamps were so prepared.

This necessarily caused much confusion and annoyance, and in December last the law was so amended that any revenue stamp or stamps might be used without regard to its particular application, so that the amount designated should be right. This law was approved December 25, 1862.

The law authorizes the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to designate any collector, bookseller or stationer, to sell these stamps, a trous result at Galveston grows out of this allowing to such party selling five per cent. therefor. SIR: I have the honor to submit the following report of the part taken by my command in front of Murfreesboro from (and including) Dec. 30, 1862, to the morning of Jan. 4, 1863. About 10 o'clock we moved across the open fields near the woods occupied by the enemy. A rebel battery opened on us from the woods, at about 600 yards range, when General Sill ordered us in position in the woods, pointing to them, and ordered me to silence that battery, which we did, after a sharp contest of about two hours, at 450 yards range. We killed about half their horser, disabled one gun-carriage, killed one of their heutenants and twelve men, wounded several of their infantry support, which lay near. My loss in the contest was one sergeant and three privates killed, three and recreation," &c. &c.

The army in Tennessee, though probably being re-enforced rapidly, can hard y be considered in a safe position. We have almost unbounded confidence in Rosecrans, but he may be overwhelmed. The rebels seem to be moving upon him from Virginia like an avalanche. If he should, after all, be defeated and driven from his position in another great battle, which, from present appearances, may not be far distant, the friends of the Union must not despair. The season has been, of late, unfavorable for as rapid a movement of troops and supplies as would be desired, and The army in Tennessee, though prob than any white man with proper self-respect be moving upon him from Virginia like an should wish his own to be. I found all well; but home showed that soldiers had been about. [From the N. Y. World.] Armies and Fleets in Motion.

The news of the coming two weeks promises to be of the most painful interest. Our armies and fleets are everywhere in motion, and the most decisive battles of the war are either now under way or are about to commence. In view of the extent of the field and the importauce of the coming shock of battle a resume of the various movements under way may be considered timely.

1. General Burnside and his grand army are, in all probability, by this time again scross the Rappahamock—not, of course, at Fredericksburg, but either above or below that fatal point. The crossing may have been coztested, but if there is any truth in the reported withdrawal of portions of Gen. Lee's army to North Carolina or East Tennessee, it is more probable that the Confederate forces would retire inland to some point where their strength; then to offer battle. The line of the North Anna river, if the Confederate army retres, will doubtless be the scene of the next great confliet. This line from Gordonsville to Hanover Junction has long been fortified, and according to Confederate authorities it was there General Lee proposed to meet any army in marching overland to Richmond. It is idle to speculate on the probable result of the capital specific considerate authorities it was the end of the first term of the year.

4. Gen. Rosecrans and his army were expecting a fight at last accounts. The re-enforcements which had been promised had not yet reached him, while the enemy had destroyed the railroad in his rear and stopped communication by the Cumberland river. His men were represented as being in good spirits, but short of rations. Gen. Longstreet had superseded Gen. Bragg in command of the Confederate army, and there was a report that eleven brigades from Virginia had gone west with him. But there must be a mistake here. How could an army of perhaps 30,000 men have been transported over a long stretch of railroad thew could an army of perhaps 39,000 men have been transported over a long stretch of railroad since the battle of Murfreesboro? If it was done, then was the story of the Carter raid on the Tennessee and Virginia road a myth. Still, all the indications were that a battle more decisive than that at Murfreesboro was about to take place in Southern Tennessee.

5. General Banks and Admiral Farragut are by this time at work on Part Hadson makes by this time at work on Port Hudson, unless, indeed, the Vicksburg disaster should have induced them to await further orders. The report in the Southern papers that a fleet was seen, bound up the Mississippi, on the 13th, would seem to indicate that Admiral Farragut was disposed to commence operations at once.

THE RADICAL PROGRAMME.—The radicals. conscious that they are the cause of the accumulated disasters to the republe which threaten its very existence, have been recently plotting how to extricate themselves from their perilous position. To go on or to go back seems equally desperate. Their plan of operations is as follows:—After the bill to inundate the country with paper money, and reduce the credit of the United States below zero, is passed, together with the conscription bill and the appropriation bills—and the term of the present Congress expires on the 4th of March the programme of the radical leaders is to induce Mr. Lincoln not only to return to the despotism which has received so severe a check by the elections in the loyal States, its proper basis. Peaceable Secession, indeed!
If this be it, in the name of God what would forcible Secession be?

These are the facts in the case; you can draw your own inferences.

The above plain, unvarished statement of facts speaks volumes. It shows the petry tyranny and proscription of Abolitionism. Consider for one moment, an Abolition pro-fessor standing up in the lecture room of a college and denouncing a Democratic student as "an infamous livr!" Poor coward that such a professor is! Would be dare talk thus to his equal in physical strength? Prof. Sanders has already become famous for his meanness and tyrannical course towards Democratic stu-dents; but this cowardly act of denouncing a student, a boy of tender years, and unused to such blackguardism as "an infamous liar," in a public lecture room, and in the presence of all the scholars, is without a parallel in the history of contemptible things. the names of all officers of the army who are on leave, with date of leave of absence, and by whom such leave of sbaence was granted.

Mr. HALE called up the bill to amend the act establishing the grade of line officers in the Navy.

Mr. TRUMBULL said the bill was to revise the action of the Advisory Board of the Navy.

Congress had passed one bill last year, and now, after having legislated out certain officers, were here about to shift them back the action of the Advisory Board of the Navy. The morning hour having expired, on moion, the joint resolution to amend the reaties with the Sioux Indians for the late treaties with the Sloux Indians for the late outrages was taken up.,

Mr. — offered a substitute for the resolution and for the house bill, to indemnify the State of Minnesota for losses. It provides—First. That all treaty stipulations with the Sloux Indians in the late massacre be annually second. That the annuities that would be due to the Indians, amounting to $1,000,000, be paid over to the commissioners for the present relief of those families who suffered most—not over $200 to be paid to any one family.

Third. That three commissioners be appointed, to hold their sittings in Minnesota, to take evidence and investigate all claims for damages, and make a return to the Secretary Interior by the 1st of December nex Mr. WILKINSON wes in favor of adhering to the House bill, which provides for alregation of treaties, and appropriated $1,500,000 for fide mnification, and for the removal of the Indians.

Indians.

After discussion, the bill was postponed.

Mr. RICE called up the bill to reimburse the State of Minnesota for expenses, insuring the State against Indian outrages. He had received telegraphs from the Governor, stating the amount necessary to reimburse the State would be $350,000. Passed.

Mr. WILSON called up the bill to provide for the greater comfort of the sick and wounded, and promoting the efficiency of the Medical Department of the army. He referred to one clause of bill increasing commutation of rations in hos-the army. He referred to one clause of bill increasing commutation of rations in hospitals from 18 to 30 cents, and said object of the bill was to restore the sick soldiers as speedily as possible.

Several Senators opposed the bill for various reasons, vz. That the Medical department was mismanaged, and that the contractors made money at the present price of rations; and that in some cases weat set before the and that in some cases meat set before the and that in some cases meat set before the sick wasn't fit to eat; that the appropriation in the aggregate would amount to a very large sum; that no accurate information could be, or ever had been, obtained from the department as to the numbers of sick and wounded, &c.

Mr. WILSON stated that we had about five thousand surgeons, and the bill prayided for

Mr. WILSON stated that we had about five thousand surgeons, and the bill provided for two hundred more and forty assistants in the regular army, and two hundred and fifty surgeons and five hundred assistants in the velunteer army. We are now employing fitteen hundred surgeons who are not enlisted, and the Government needs more. If they could get one hundred more good eurgeons it would be well.

The Senate went juto executive session and The Senate went iuto executive session, and afterwards adjourned. HOUSE. Mr. STEVENS reported a bill providing for the appointment of a Deputy Register of the Treasury, with a salary of $2,500 per annum, and extending for two years from date. The bill was amended by making the salary of the deputy $2,000 per annum, and limiting the term of the Assistant Secretary to one year from date.

The bill, at amended, then passed.
The House went into Committee of Whole, THIS EVENING, FRIDAY, JANUARY 23D, 1963 THE to previde ways and means for the support of the Government.

Among the amendments which are subsequently to be voted on, is one authorizing the Secretary to dispose of bonds on such time as he may deem most advisable, for the lawful money of the United States, or for any of the certificates of indebtedness that may at any the Government.

Among the amendments which are subsecertificates of indebtedness that may at any time be unpaid, or for any of the Treasury notes heretofore issued under the provisions of this set. goes up as paper money increases. The price of coin goes up as paper money increases. The price of coin enters into the price of the article upon which there is a money tax, the consumer pays for it. For instance, the importer purchases one dollar's worth of prints in England. When he enters them for consumption he pays the 30 per cent. duties, and adds to the original purchase, making 130. He also adds the difference in exchange, which is 60 per cent. purchase, making 130. He also adds the dif-jerence in exchange, which is 60 per cent., making with the first duty 190. On this sum the realer adds his profit of 20 per cent., or 42 cents, making the cost to the con-sumer 251. Thus, under the present tariff and paper money system, the manufac-turer gets an actual protection of 150 per cent. Do you wonder that the manufacturers of Massachnsetts divide their regular ten per cent., and from twenty to sixty-six per cent. cent., and from twenty to sixty-six per cent. extra. On the first of January the Naumeg Mills of Salem divided 66 per cent. extra, and the Upperill Mills, at Belleford, Me., divided 50 per cent extra. Many other mills divided large extras at the same time. These, and other facts show how the agricultural interests are impoverished, and how the life-blood is suck-ed by these manufacturing vampyres from the veins of labor through a high tariff and inveius of labor through a high tariff and in-convertible paper money. Agriculture gets no protection. Its surplus above domestic consumption seeks a foreign market and re-ceives no benefit from prohibition or protec-tive tariffs; hence agricultural products do not rise. Let this process go on a few years, and the wealth of the West will be transferred to the pockets of Northeastern monopolisis and capi-talists. This is a poor way to sustain the credit of the Government, which denends upon tayes talists. This is a poor way to sustain the credit of the Government, which depends upon taxes, confidence and union; it is a poor return for the patriotic devotion of the West to the Republic. If such a policy prevails, it will increase and not mitigate the feeling in the West against New England. I speak this in warning and devotion to the whole Union. Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, remarked: As the gentleman from Onio was a distinguished leader of the other side of the house, it was perhaps necessary to say that it was the almost ununimous conclusion that the interest on the permanent debt should be paid in coin. If this feature of the bill were stricken out, where would the Treasury procure coin for this purpose?

Mr. COX'S amendment was rejected. The second section was amended so as to authorize the Secretary to issue $40,000,000 in Treasury notes, interest not exceeding 6 per cent., payable semi-annually in coin, and the principal payable any time after five years from date. Such notes received for internal du ties.

Mr. PENDLETON moved to strike out the 21 section of the bill, which provides for the issue of $30,000,000 legal tender notes, and said that on this subject the Administration was divided against itself.

After some discussion, Mr. PENDLETON'S amendment was rejected.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.

The Washington Star of yesterday is received; it has the following highly important intelligence in regard to the movements of the army under Barnside. The understanding in Washington is, that a portion of the army of the Potomac—General Hooker's division at least—has certainly crossed the Rappahannock, and that the movement took place.

An address has, it is said, been issued by General Burnside to the soldiers of his command.

Gen. Loan, commanding at Jefferson City, sends the Democrat a letter from Col. Renick, 5th cavalry Missouri militia, dated Independence, January 11th, stating that five of his were murdered the week previous by guerril-las. The soldiers were all shot in the head and their bodies horribly mangled. Some had their faces cut to pieces with boot-heels. Powder was exploded in one man's year and both yeas were cut off. Whether these bar-barities were committed before or after their death is unkown.

Renick says that ten of these men, with their wives and children, acting as spies, are equal to twenty five of his troops. Guerrillas are threatening Union women of Jackson county, and but for the wives and sisters of some of the most notorious rebels, nothing would have prevented them from excuting their threats.

They also levy assessments upon loyal men, and collect it rapidly. Some of those assessed chain to be Southern sympathizers, to avoid paying.

Renick advises that the wives of guerrillas be sent out of the county. HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF POTOMAC, )

General Orders No. 7. The commmanding General announces to the Army of the Potomac that they are about to meet the enemy once more. The late bril-iant actions in North Carolina, Tennessee, and Arkansas have divided the enemy on the Rappahannock, and the auspicious mu-ment seems to have arrived to strike a great and mortal blow to the rebellion, and to gain that decisive victory which is due to the country, let the gallant soldiers of so many brilliant bat le-fields accomplish this achieve GROW COTTON .- In the early history of Kentucky we find cotton was grown to a corsiderable extent. Prices were then such as to make the business profitable. When prices declined cotton growing was generally dis continued in this State, except occasionally for domestic consumption. An old lady near Paducah has this last season produced several hundred pounds, and there is no doubt this staple could be grown with profit in this State even at half the present price. We would re commend to our farmers, especially in the Southern portion of the State, to procure seed from Tennessee and give it a trial.

Flax seed is higher now than ever before in this country. Tais does not arise from an increased demand from the oil mills, but from a very general and laudable disposition all ever the country to come back to the good old custom of our fathers-every farmer growing his patch of flax, and every house wife making her own linen for domestic use. These were the times when cotton goods These were the times when cotton goods were even higher than they are now, and girls were educated for use as well as ornament.

Then would the Vallandighams, of Onio, and the Brights, of Indiana, have railied to the isthe Brights, of Indians, have raitied to the issuing of Bragg's noted order; then would many thousand friends in Indiana, Ohio and Illinois have joined the Southern army; then, too, could General Bragg, having cut off the Western from the Eastern States, have whispered terms of peace in the Northwestern car, and then might we have reas n bly toped for peace. But now all hope of peace is indefinitely postponed, and our prospects are gloomier than when we crossed the mountains," &c.

CHASE'S BANKING SCHEME IN NEW YORK,-The Abolition Bank Superintendent in New York announces, in his report to the Legislacan never be acquiesced in, and that it is clearly unconstitutional. As so the proposition to fill the State with bank corporations, under the Federal law, and suppress State in" stitutions, in order to give the monopoly to Mr. Chase's brood of banks, the Superintendent says:

"Whatever may be the action of Congress in the premises, I have full faith that the Legislature of New York will protect its honor and the interests of a common constituency with dignity and firmness. Under the existing laws no association or person can issue, within this State, notes to circulate as money without depositing the required sec arities in this Department. Without legislative instructions the context it will be seen the context of the cont this Department. Without legislative instruc-tions to the contrary, it will be my duty, dur-ing my continuance in office, to enforce the provision against all associations or individu-als claiming authority from any other source. THE LIFE AND DEATH OF A PATRIOTIC SOL DIER.-A surgeon in one of the Alexandria military hospitals writes in a private note: "Our wounded men bear their sufferings nobly; I have hardly heard; a word of com-plaint from one of them. A soldier from the 'stern and rock bound coast of Maine'—a vice stern and rock bound coast of Maine'—a vic-tim of the slaughter at kredericksburg—lay in this hospital, his life ebbing away from a fa tal wound. He was asked if he had any message to leave for his dear ones whom he love i so well. "Tell them," said ones whom he love i so well. 'Tell them,' said he, 'how I died-they know how I lived!'"
